DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

"Inasmuch" is the title of a short story by Miss Felicia C. Terry of this place, a money prize in a contest conducted by a Boston newspaper.
Carroll Allen was in New York on Thursday, placing orders for lines of goods which he is to carry in a store that he will open in Center street within a few weeks.
"Daddy Longlegs" is so charmingly portrayed in pictures by Mary Heford that hours of real delight await you if you visit the Orpheum theatre, Jan. 26-27—adv.
From New Orleans to a local person came a newspaper clipping from a publication of that city telling of last Saturday's tragedy in Brooklyn. The clipping arrived here Thursday. Just how to obey the law requiring the parking of motor vehicles, no more than 12 inches from the curb is a puzzle for motorists who find Danielson's business section piled with banks of snow swept off the center section of streets.
"It is to laugh" quoth erstwhile democrats in Danielson Thursday, after reading W. J. Bryan's eleventh commandment and they would like nothing better than the chance to vote against the man who has recently been described as "The Bald Orator of the Chautauqua." However, Bryan is always assured of just one vote in Danielson—and that surely is better than none at all.

The body of Edmund A. Sahlen, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sahlen of Foster, is expected to arrive in Danielson today (Friday), from Philadelphia, where the young man died on Wednesday at the naval hospital. A. P. Wood will take charge of the body.
Mr. Sahlen enlisted in the naval service last March and until recently when he was transferred to Philadelphia, had been at the naval training station at Newport. He is survived by his father and mother and a brother and sister.

The funeral of Mrs. Lena Barriere was held from her home on the West Side Thursday morning, with services at St. James' church, Rev. Emil Replat, M. R., being celebrant of the requiem mass. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were George Dubé, Peter Dubé, Harmand Barriere, Remie Barriere, Peter Maynard and Harmand Maynard. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

At the undertaking room of L. E. Kennedy, on Purchase street, Thursday afternoon a funeral service for Mrs. Susan Kenyon Baker, who died at Goodyear, was conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church. The body was taken to Mausoleum for burial in Union cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers.

Thursday afternoon at her home in Brooklyn, funeral services for Mrs. Selma Lunalia, murder victim of Victor Lippone, were held, the body being taken to the home from the undertaking room of L. E. Kennedy, where it had rested since being removed from the Brooklyn home of Lippone, Saturday afternoon. The body was placed in the receiving vault at the Brooklyn cemetery. Of those who died in last Saturday's tragedy only the bodies of the murderer and his four day's old child remain at the undertaking room, and these funerals are expected to be held today (Friday).

The quantities of snow and the extremely heavy ice on the rivers, furnish the possibility of serious floods in case of a sudden rise in temperature and a quick thaw. It being pointed out Thursday, ice on the river is close to 20 inches thick in many places, especially in the coves, and a quick rise in the stream, breaking this ice, might mean disaster to dams and much consequent damage.

Many who never want to see before are now strangely willing to take a change beyond the three-mile limit. Philadelphia Ledger.

It was stated here Thursday that plans are being considered for the organization of a Realty company. This company, it is intended, shall acquire a strip of land and erect thereon as many as a dozen houses. If plans for the company are put through those who are members of it will pay in amounts sufficient to make a fund of from $25,000 to $75,000.

The houses completed, they will be turned over to men who would like to own their own homes and the most liberal kind of an arrangement made for paying for the properties.

Under the proposed company's plan a man with a few hundred dollars could come into immediate possession of one of the new homes and, through an arrangement that it is hoped to perfect between the Realty company and the Putnam Building and Loan association, pay for it from month to month until he had cleared up his obligations.

The plan for the Realty company would give Putnam within a few months houses that are badly needed to help along the growth of the city and to help meet the constantly increasing demand for rental here.

State highway department surveyors are laying out the route of a new state highway that is to run eastward to the Rhode Island line. At South Killingly the indicated route is via what is known as the Line Store route past the farm of Aden Tillinghast a distance and then swinging eastward through the field across Quonodock brook to Little Rest. This route will eliminate the need of improving the steep and difficult Dark Lantern schoolhouse hill and another hill at the top of which is the Rhode Island line.

Incidentally, the writer of the letter complains that the young man to whom he wrote it has been too attentive to the writer's wife, and he sets forth his reasons for refusing to work for the business section, and who is only a few months out of the service, has received a letter.

The letter informs him that he is allowed three weeks to get out of town or take the consequences. The implication is that if the young man who has received the letter is not absent from Putnam within the specified time, he may expect to be used for a target.

The funeral of James Munroe Gilmore was held from his home here on Thursday afternoon, with services conducted at the Masonic temple on Grove street, the service in accordance with the full Masonic ritual and the first held in the temple in years.

Rev. G. C. Mackay, pastor of the Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman and the Masonic funeral service was conducted by Attorney Ernest C. Morse, master of Quinebaug lodge, in which Mr. Gilmore had been interested in a very active way for many years. Burial was in Grove street cemetery.

Help! A great tragedy is impending for Putnam, and unless something is done to forestall it, there may be many regrets. A young man who works in the business section, and who is only a few months out of the service, has received a letter.

The letter informs him that he is allowed three weeks to get out of town or take the consequences. The implication is that if the young man who has received the letter is not absent from Putnam within the specified time, he may expect to be used for a target.
